Wall Street Soaring

On March 12, 1923 Wall Street wend down in history. The stock market increased 75%. This is the largest increase Wall Street has ever seen. Due to this large increase the economy has been boosted as well. All of the major businesses have brought in larger profits. The rise in the stock market has risen the amount of money that people have. Directly increasing the amount of money spent.

The large increase in the stock market has had an adverse affect on small corporations. Even though their profits have doubled, they are still not making enough money to survive. The large companies are using this to their advantage, and they around and selling them to others for double the price. The few stockholders of the small companies have tried to get their money out while they can but many have failed. The money that is left is being absorbed through the large companies for personal finances.

When the large companies were questioned as to where the left over money is going they replied "there has been no left over money, and if there was it would be returned to it rightful owners." Their responses have led to a financial debate that is sweeping the all of New York as well as other states.

are buying the small companies. After purchasing the companies they are turning

"Great" Fortune

A man by the name of Jay Gatsby has purchased 99% of the lowest prices stocks in the Stock Exchange. Gatsby, a very wealthy gentleman has always been involved in the stock market.

Most people consider him to be an intelligent man who makes wise choices, except for this one. When questioned at to why he bought this stock he replied "I know that it is a risky move, but I believe that the state of the economy can rebuild this company. With my business skills and some of my wealthy friends we can make millions from this company."

He went on to say that this is just another step to build his fortune up to heights that will impress all those in New York, especially in East Egg.
